MINISTER OUTLINES REGISTRATION PLAN ON NATIONAL SCALE

A nation-wide plan for the registration of every man and woman in Canada above the age of 16 years, has been announced by Hon. James G. Gardiner, minister of national war services. National registration is a first step in carrying out the objects of the National Resources Mobilization Act.

Four days will be set aside about August 14 for registration purposes. Jules Castonguay, chief electoral officer for Canada, has been appointed chief registrar, by order-in-council, to supervise national registration. A provincial organization will be set up in each province with the chief justice of that province or a judge appointed by him as the head.

To carry out actual registration, members of the house of commons are asked to name a registrar and a deputy registrar in the constituency they represent. These in turn will appoint two men in each subdivision of the riding to carry out details of the plan. This plan is patterned along the lines followed in taking the vote in a Dominion election, with the exception that registration will be compulsory during the four days set aside by the minister. Each subdivision will be divided in four areas and the people in each area will register on a given day.

Rates of pay for registration officials will approximate those given to election officials, as will the pay for rental of registration offices. Registrars and deputy registrars will be allowed necessary travelling expenses.

An appeal to make registration a national effort was sent out by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, and the services of voluntary workers and organizations solicited.

BLANKETS DIVERTED TO ENGLAND

Blankets contributed to the Canadian Red Cross Society during its recent appeal have not been sent to France, Dr. Fred W. Routley, said yesterday.

"Although these blankets were intended for the suffering refugees and wounded soldiers in France, we could not take a chance on their falling into German hands," the national commissioner said. "The first shipment had been authorized before the French armistice, but we were able to divert the blankets to England, where they will be stored until needed. The remainder, about 60,000, will be held in Canada."

Dr. Routley gave assurance that every blanket contributed would be needed in the days to come. Already, he said, the Canadian Red Cross had been asked by the Dominion government to loan a quantity of blankets to equip the colonist trains carrying refugee children from Britain to destinations in Canada.

"We shall have blankets, sheets, pillow cases, towels, and so on, waiting for the children at the port of arrival," Dr. Routley said.

Among the blankets contributed to the Canadian Red Cross appeal were 20,000 from the paper companies of Canada.

The Earl of Athlone has long been actively associated with the work of veterans of the first Great War, and is vice-president of the British Empire Service League in England, of which the Canadian Legion is a component part. His Excellency, while governor-general of South Africa, was patron of the B.E.S.L. in that Dominion.

A Task For All

If anything were needed to dispel the impression which prevailed among some people in some of the countries of the world that the British were decadent and lethargic in their prosecution of the war, Prime Minister Winston Churchill certainly provided that requisite when he took the drastic but necessary measures which he did to prevent the French fleet falling into the hands of the Germans and the Italians.

True, the battle of Oran was a melancholy affair when, under the instructions of the British government, a section of the British navy had no other alternative but to destroy several units of the fleet of a recently erstwhile ally and in so doing to cause loss of life among those who only two or three weeks before had been fighting alongside them as comrades in a common cause against a common foe.

But, as was pointed out by the press of Great Britain, immediately after this lamentable affair, it would have been unthinkable to allow a single unit of the powerful French fleet to fall into the hands of Hitler and Mussolini, if by any means on earth it could have been prevented. The history of the past six years has demonstrated that Hitler's word is not to be trusted under any circumstances. Indeed Hitler himself, in his book Mein Kampf has told the world that he considers it justifiable to break his pledge if it will result in a gain for Germany.

So that, on his own testimony, confirmed by his subsequent actions, Hitler could not have been believed when he gave his undertaking to the world that the French fleet, while in the custody of Germany and Italy, would be placed in cold storage and not used against Great Britain, after the fall of France.

There is no doubt what would have happened had the British placed a bland and childlike trust in this Hitlerian promise. Within a few days, or a few weeks, a huge armada, comprising the former French fleet and the Italian and German fleet would have been engaged in mortal combat with the British fleet in an effort to invade English soil.

It Is To Laugh

It was almost laughable to read of the indignation of the Nazis when they learned of the heroic steps taken by Churchill to prevent the bulk of the great French fleet becoming an adjunct to their own naval, military and air forces and of their "righteous" horror over the action taken at Oran, when they asserted that, because of it, the name of Churchill would be memorialized as the greatest scoundrel in all history, or words to that effect. One can imagine their rage and chagrin when they found that the initiative and courage of Churchill had deprived them of an ace in the hole. For one thing it proved, not only to Hitler and his Nazis, to Mussolini and his Fascists but to the whole world, that British leadership is not vacillating nor weak; that on the contrary, the leadership in British war effort; and that means our war effort, is vested in men of courage, daring and initiative, and that with such leadership, the Empire, even though alone, will fight to the last ditch and will ultimately conquer. Hitler himself has said that of all foes the British are the most dangerous when aroused. For once Hitler spoke the truth and his followers did that truth unhesitatingly.

Spirit Still Alive

Not only was Churchill's action at Oran lauded and received with elation in Great Britain and throughout the Empire, but it found justification in the eyes of the whole democratic world, including the United States, where it was accorded practically unanimous approval in the public press, not only on the ground of necessity but of moral rectitude.

Apart altogether from the fact that Churchill's momentous decision and action means easing the burden on the United States of defending her own Atlantic shores against a potential Nazi invasion, the American people recognize now that in Prime Minister Churchill, the Empire has a leader worthy of her great traditions, that the cause of democracy is in safe keeping and that when necessity dictates, Britain can rise to the occasion as might be expected of the descendants of Drake, Raleigh, Wellington and Nelson.

There are names to conjure with and Churchill, whose courage and resourcefulness has never been doubted among his own people, has joined their ranks. Instead of his name going down in history in the ignominious role assigned to him by Hitler his name will be written as one of that great company of illustrious men who built and helped to maintain intact the greatest Empire the world has ever seen. The spirit of Wellington and Nelson still lives and has its exemplification in Britain and throughout the Empire.

Moreover, the British, their scattered offspring throughout the world are not decadent and they will conquer at all costs, but the resourcefulness, initiative and energy of us all must be bent to the task in hand.

Two ambulances were ordered previously from the district and another has been promised.

These shipments contained, besides large quantities of other supplies: 52,389 pairs of socks, 5,848 sweaters, 14,478 bed gowns, 23,590 pairs of pyjamas, 6,018 children's garments, 1,485 quilts, 7,610 blankets. The following articles have been supplied to military units in Saskatchewan: 3,394 pairs of socks, 451 scarfs, 30 pyjama jackets, 36 bed gowns, 30 sweaters.

The Retort Courteous

At a dinner party in London a lady talked for a long time to the Japanese Ambassador, Baron Hayashi. Then, realizing how long she had been talking, she said, "I'm afraid you must think I like to hear the sound of my own voice."

To which the Baron gallantly replied, "Madame, I knew that you were fond of music."

Italian Gold In London

Britain Has Secured About $50,000,000 Which Was On Deposit
The British are getting in one lick at Italy which doesn't show in the battle accounts. It is the seizure of about $50,000,000 of gold which the Bank of Italy has long had on deposit in London. This is about one-third of all the gold owned by Italy, and is a notable plucking of financial feathers.

When Italy was "fighting" with the Allies against Germany in the other war, the British used their credit to finance joint purchases abroad. The Italian government borrowed gold from the Bank of Italy and deposited it in London against the British purchases for Italy. The war over, Italy began reducing its debt to Britain and London released gold to Italy as the debt was lowered. Italy in time stopped payments and Britain impounded what gold remained, estimated at $50,000,000.

Italy's poor financial position is well illustrated by the drain of gold from that country. In 1934, before beginning the costly Ethiopian invasion, Italy had $218,000,000 of gold. By the end of 1938 only $103,000,000 remained. This was further reduced to $144,000,000 last December. Since that time $42,000,000 of Italian gold has come to the United States alone to settle for trade balances.

Intervention in Spain and decline of the tourist trade have virtually drained Italy of foreign exchange resources. If a quick victory doesn't reward Mussolini's dagger-in-the-back effort, Italy's collapse will be speedy and complete. — Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Just A Thank You

Story Of How Rescued Scottish Crew Showed Their Gratitude

For 50 hours the crew of the Granton (Scotland) trawler Theresa Boyle shivered in a tiny lifeboat after a Nazi bomber had sunk their ship.

Then the keen eye of an R.A.F. pilot on patrol saw them—exhausted, their boat buffeted by heavy seas. The plane flew low. There were ten men in the boat. Eight lay on their backs, too exhausted to move, but just able to wave anxiously to the pilot.

The plane found and guided two minesweepers to the spot. It circled round until the sign—the white flag of the sunken trawler—were taken on board.

Then it flew off. But shortly a signal lamp from one rescue ship recalled the plane.

"Anything wrong?" signalled the pilot.

"No," the reply flickered. "These chaps we picked up just want to say 'Thank you'." — London Daily Mail.

Sun Dials

Are Still Used In Many Places To Tell The Time

Until 1920 clocks and watches were a curiosity. People learned to tell time by shadows cast on sundials or similar contrivances of homemade construction. Even yet, we can tell when it is time to get up by the sunshine on our garage roof as we see it from our sleeping porch.

A sundial can be made any place where the sun shines, on a wall or on the ground, but it must be tested by experience to be correct. Of course it will not tell minutes, will change slightly with the season, and this must be allowed for, and is no good on cloudy days, but it is fun and is useful to have one in the garden.

Sundials are still used in many places. In lonely mountain cabins the shadow on the wall tells the housewife when her men folks will come to dinner. The Arab tells time by the vertical stick he sets up in the desert. In India they tell time by their own shadows as they face a definite direction.

Border Line For Crops

There is a border line for each particular crop beyond which it cannot be successfully grown. This is particularly true in Canada of corn, soybeans and sorghum. The Central Experimental Farm warns against sorghum which requires warm weather and a long growing season.

Radio Runs Model Plane

Successful experiments in radio control of model aircraft were conducted recently at Hout Bay in South Africa, a small model seaplane soaring 100 feet above the surf and responding instantly to every move of the radio joy stick.

Orders Being Filled

Fires Have Been Re-Lit In London Stained Glass Works

One of the world's leading craftsmen in stained glass put out the fires in his kiln, where the colors are burnt into the glass, and said farewell to his staff when war broke out eight months ago. To-day the fires are re-lit; the staff is re-assembled, and the London workshop is busy satisfying orders from abroad.

The first of the war orders leaves England soon for the United States. It is a great window for St. Paul's School Chapel, Concord, New Hampshire. Another window will shortly be shipped to Canada, where it will adorn the chapel of Wycliffe College, Toronto; another is going to the Scottish Church, Salisbury, Rhodesia, and yet another to St. Mary's Church, Wellington, New Zealand.

The hands which produce the masterpieces in colored glass are those of Reginald Bell. He learnt the art from his father, who learnt it from his own father before him. "The craft of stained glass came from Europe, where the French, Swiss, Dutch, Germans and, later, the Italians, were experts," says Mr. Bell. "But centuries ago it was introduced to Britain, chiefly through the clergy, and it took growth. Craftsmen took so naturally to the art that as early as the 14th century glass painting schools arose all over the kingdom and English stained glass became the most sought after even in the countries of Europe, where it originated, and where it was already tending to decline."

Medallion windows for nurseries, with portraits of animals, are among recent fashions in stained glass, which is by no means confined to church decoration. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

A Happy Omen

The Montreal Star says: How many people realize that Mr. Churchill is the first English soldier Premier since the Duke of Wellington, and the first cavalry man to hold the office since William Pitt, Earl of Chatham. A happy omen. Chatham was England's greatest War Minister and Wellington, Lord Napoleon. Third time will make the hat trick. And "hat tricks" are one of Winston's specialties.

Secret Ingredients

Research Has Failed To Determine What Butter Fat Is

New research has added a vital chapter to the present knowledge of fats as human food. Nature has devised a product, namely milk or butter fat, which is made of secret ingredients combined by a secret formula. Butter fat has a "something" that other fats cannot claim. It produces better growth and better health than any other fats which have been tested, but what that "something" is has not as yet been definitely determined.

Hubby: "Gracious! Why didn't you call me at the office and ask me about it first?"
Wife: "Oh, I didn't want to waste a nickel that way!"

A Good Suggestion

The London News Chronicle suggests editorially that the men of the Dunkirk retreat be given a "1940 Star", similar to the Star of 1914, given the soldiers who withstood the first German onslaught of the First Great War.

BRITAIN INTENDS TO PURCHASE ALL PLANES POSSIBLE

London.—Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, said in the house of lords that "the sky is the limit" in the purchase of aircraft from the United States.

"Our program is perfectly simple," he said. "It is to buy everything we can possibly get."

Lord Beaverbrook added that "in pursuit of that program, we have spent $10,000,000 a day every day that the aircraft ministry has been in existence since May 4."

"The Americans are up to date on their program. They have delivered to us so far everything we have promised and they are a little ahead of time."

He said there was no "shortage" of planes, but, "we will need more aeroplanes every day and must go on developing that program as fully as possible."

Canada should be regarded as the second line of industrial and naval defence, Lord Barnby, Conservative, told the lords during the debate on war supplies from the United States.

"There are good natural harbors on the Nova Scotia coast which might be made use of," Lord Barnby said, urging that Britain establish plant and technical personnel in the Dominion.

Canadian manufacturers were bewildered at the paucity of orders placed by Britain at the beginning of the war and "there is still in Canada no explanation of why orders of last October to erect factories and aircraft production were turned down," he added.

He said that Arthur B. Purvis, Montreal industrialist, who heads the British purchasing commission in the United States, had been "overworked and understaffed."

Lord Barnby emphasized the production capacity of Canada's industry and expressed surprise at what he said was British conservatism in placing orders in North America. The peer, who was in the United States when the war broke out, paid tribute to the work of Mr. Purvis but contended his work was hampered by not having complete liberty of action.

Political Union

Harvard University Professor Thinks Britain And U.S. Should Join Forces

Cambridge, Mass.—Political union of the United States and the British Commonwealth of Nations was advocated by Professor H. Duncan Hall of the Harvard University summer school, as "the one way of escape left to the United States from the prison walls closing in on America."

Declaring "it is a question of closer political relations with the whole British Commonwealth now or perhaps later with the remnants—those of the dominions that may be left battling along on the fringes," Hall said in an address:

"Political union of America and the British Commonwealth would open up a world wide common citizenship. . . . It would pool not only citizenship but resources and make a solid block on which stable peace might be erected. By this means alone could America secure the naval bases in all parts of the world vital to her exercise of sea power."

Troop Parades Suggested

London. Paper Thinks They Would Inspire Brit. People

London.—The Daily Express in an editorial urged a big parade be held of Empire troops now in Britain.

Explaining that many of them find nothing to do all day and are tired of strolling in London, the paper said:

"Let us ask them to inspire the British people by marching through the streets not only of London but the big provincial cities."

Cadet Training

Edmonton.—Cadet training will be reinstated in Edmonton schools this fall, providing approval and financial support is forthcoming by the department of militia, the Edmonton school board has decided. A previous system of cadet training, financed by the Dominion government, was abolished by the board in 1929.

Phone Service With Berlin

New York.—Direct telephone service between the United States and Berlin was resumed for the first time since last September, Louis F. Lochner, Associated Press staff writer in Berlin, telephoned the Associated Press here.

British Sea Power

Recent Events Show Royal Navy Has Lost None Of Its Punch

New York.—The New York Herald Tribune, commenting editorially upon the naval clashes in the Mediterranean, said that despite the Italian swarms of airplanes and torpedoes it is "evident that the Mediterranean is very far from being 'Mare Nostrum.'"

"Here is the Royal Navy making an aggressive sweep westward from Alexandria up to the very toe of Italy, and another sweep eastward from Gibraltar at the same time," said the paper.

It implies not only a reassuring vigor in action but a degree of command over the whole of Mediterranean communications which can bring Italy—now the weakest point in Hitler-Europe—under a throttling economic pressure. In one theatre, at any rate, British sea power still seems to possess the effectiveness it held when Nelson led his wooden squadrons through these same seas."

The Times said Britain's switch to the offensive "as soon as she begins to fight alone amplified the fact that 'war in earnest' is now on in the Mediterranean."

"This is a great battle; it involves the triangular struggle developing in Syria, the current manoeuvres to control the Dardanelles, the efforts of the axis powers meeting with the Hungarians in Munich to hold the status quo in the Balkans for the duration of the war."

"It is the war for Africa, for India, for naval supremacy, for all those points at the outer plexus of the world on which imperial power is based. And it is the battle fought by Britain because she knows that the chances of victory are surer here than in any other battleship."

Refugee Plan

May Have To Be Curtailed On Account Of Lack Of Shipping Space

London.—The British government has made no decision yet on the future of the large-scale plan to evacuate thousands of children to Canada and the United States. But there are indications the plan will be curtailed considerably.

Shipping space and the Royal Navy's lack of spare ships to provide adequate convoys are the big problems but in some quarters it is being suggested that Washington should be approached for permission to use U.S. ships.

"The plan has not been dropped but I believe it will be reduced considerably in scope," an authorized source declared.

This source suggested that while the plan was concerned on the basis of thousands of children going overseas, it might be reduced to a scale of hundreds leaving this country. He emphasized the final decision has not been made by the government.

If the government scheme for the children is stopped the private evacuation of children will be stopped as well, it was indicated.

De Valera Is Neutral

Hope Is Abandoned For Reaching Any Agreement

London.—The British government has practically abandoned hope of bringing Northern Ireland and Eire into agreement for defence of the island, it was reported.

Prime Minister de Valera's uncompromising determination to maintain neutrality for Eire has made it impossible for the British government to reach any agreement with him. On the other hand Viscount Craigavon's equal determination to preserve the constitutional position of Northern Ireland has proved to be an insurmountable barrier to negotiations.

Mr. de Valera not only has declared for neutrality but also has appealed for a united Ireland to defend the Irish neutrality. That would mean Northern Ireland abandoning belligerency, something Lord Craigavon's government will not do.

Defence Of Airports

London.—Sir Archibald Sinclair, secretary for air, announced in the commons the appointment of a director of ground defence to supervise and co-ordinate the defence of airports, both from attack from the air and from parachute troops. He said Britain is prepared for Germans landing in British islands.

Political Illusions

Bucharest.—Rumania announced her withdrawal from the League of Nations. Foreign Minister Mihail Manoilescu told the press the withdrawal ends Rumania's "political illusions." These illusions, he said, only made her turn against "great and friendly nations" (obviously Germany, Italy).

Shanghai Incident

Experts Matter Can Be Settled Between Zap And U.S. Authorities

Tokyo.—Yakichiro Suma, foreign office spokesman, said he expected the Shanghai incident in which United States marines arrested 15 Japanese gendarmes would be settled between Japanese and American authorities in Shanghai.

The commander of the gendarmes demanded an apology from Col. Dewitt Peck, United States Marine commander, for alleged maltreatment of the prisoners.

Rear-Admiral Moriji Takeda, commander of the Japanese naval garrison in Shanghai, told newspapers that "the violence and insults inflicted on the Japanese gendarmes were barbaric acts beyond description."

Col. Dewitt Peck, the marine garrison commander, has branded the Japanese charges as "lies."

MORE MEN NEEDED FOR CANADIAN ACTIVE SERVICE

Ottawa.—Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of defence, and Hon. C. G. Power, air minister, have sent out a call for men. Col. Ralston said 40,000 additional men were needed for the Canadian Active Service Force, the full-time soldiery, and Major Power said many thousands were wanted for part-time training in the non-permanent active militia.

"The fire draws closer to our own homesteads," said Col. Ralston. "We can see the smoke and almost feel the flame."

Britain's homesteads were in the path of the fire. The Battle of Britain was also the Battle of Canada.

The war could not be won by defence alone. "The time for offence would come, but Canada needed men now to meet the emergency. He was sure the response would be immediate."

Col. Ralston said he would "not be true to my position" if he did not make it clear that every able-bodied man in Canada between the ages of 19 and 45 "and perhaps over" should have military training.

Those who volunteered now for the militia would receive training in the evenings and spend perhaps two or three weeks in camp in August. Those who were called up later under the mobilization law would probably spend six weeks in camp.

Elaborating on the government's plan Major Power said every man of military age should get in touch with his local military authorities, be ready to drill two nights a week at local military headquarters by July 15 and be ready for 15 to 20 days in camp by Aug. 1.

If military classes were not completed by the voluntary method the men required would be called up by classes.

National defence was the responsibility of every man, woman and boy in Canada, Col. Ralston said. In his recent post as finance minister he had frequently called on the people for money.

"Now I am calling for men," he said. Title of Col. Ralston's talk was "Men Wanted."

Col. Ralston told of the methods adopted in raising the Canadian Air Force.

THEY SEEK PASSPORTS FOR CHILDREN

A scene outside a passport office. In London as British mothers and fathers await passports for their children so that they can send them to Canada for the duration of the war. No one between the ages of 16 and 60 may leave the country except women accompanying children.

VICE-CHIEF

Major-General H. D. G. Crerar, senior combat officer at Canadian Military Headquarters in England, who is being brought back to Canada to take over the newly-created post of vice-chief of the Canadian General Staff.

Service Force and of the despatch overseas last winter of the 1st division and ancillary units attached to it. Part of the 2nd division was also now serving overseas, he said, and 3rd and 4th divisions had been authorized.

To meet needs of overseas requirements and home defence, guard duty and service in Newfoundland, Iceland, Greenland and the West Indies the department needed 150,000 men, the minister said. There were 40,000 more than had been enlisted and the way was open now for 40,000 men to enlist at once.

Faced with a menace to the safety of Canada, Major Power said, the government proposed to train every able-bodied man to defend his home, his loved ones, his liberty, his life.

"This nation," he said, "will be no horde of refugees, untrained, untaught, helpless and impotent, fleeing blindly in the face of the enemy. We propose that every man shall be given the right and shall assume his full obligation of citizenship."

The government would use its power to mobilize men and resources. As used alone it would create regular units of the defence forces and there was a preliminary job.

In order that men may be ready to take their places in those defence forces," he said, "Canada issues a call for men to be trained in the use of arms during the next three months."

Daily War Cost Heavy

British People Warned That Taxes May Be Further Increased

London.—The nation was told of the terrific cost of fighting the Nazi menace — $9,500,000 ($42,275,000) daily — and prepared to give more of its money to the cause and to face further rationing of its food supplies.

Sir Kingsley Wood gravely presented the cold figures of cost to the House of Commons, asking a vote of credit for £1,000,000,000 and telling that additional taxes might be imposed on top of the already heavy levies.

Of the daily cost, Sir Kingsley said, £6,500,000 goes directly to the army, navy and air force.

The house granted the requested vote of credit. The last such grant was £700,000,000 in March, of which £675,000,000 has been spent.

National Registration

Provision Made For Those Away From Home During Time Period

Ottawa.—National registration of Canadians is not going to interfere with holiday or business trips of those people who happen to be away from home during the days set aside for registration, Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, deputy minister-designate of the new department of national war services, said.

Mr. Justice Davis and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, who will head the new department, worked late into the night discussing details of the registration which will be carried on during a four-day period in August.

"A man away from his customary place of voting, where he would ordinarily register, should register at the place designated in the area where he happens to be during the registration period," said Mr. Justice Davis.

"There he will be given his form to fill out after satisfying the deputy-registrar of his bona fides. Then it will be a mechanical matter for the registration officials to see that this man's registration form is catalogued in his home area."

Thus a man resident in Halifax, whose business took him to Vancouver would register in Vancouver and his answers to questions asked by the government would be forwarded to the Halifax registrars.

Every means of modern publicity—newspaper, magazine, advertising posters, radio talks and dramas—will be used to aid the "silent columnists."

It pointed out that rumors and depressing gossip often are inspired by the enemy. The Nazi developed propaganda into a deadly weapon.

The revelation that a German stormtrooper had been employed on the translation staff of the British Broadcasting Corporation prior to his dismissal recently was given front page prominence in most London papers.

The stormtrooper is said to be still at liberty in London.

The case was revealed in the commons when Philip Noel Baker, Labor, claimed that Nazi agents had organized a plot throughout England to spread defeatist talk. He gave no details, merely claiming that one of the 20 German translators employed by the BBC had been found to be a stormtrooper and had been dismissed but not interned.

This transfer of training operation could be made with "a minimum interruption to the flow of personnel," Hon. C. G. Power, air minister, said in a review of the training plan.

The plan has been speeded up wherever possible. "But the long view is to be maintained in the prosecution of this war against an adversary whose first endeavors have gained him a momentary but not overbearing advantage," said Major Power.

First pupils of the British Commonwealth air training plan to graduate for service with the Royal Air Force will complete their course in September, Air Minister Power said.

Already there are 1,106 officers in training for the administration, maintenance and instruction of the air plan and 10,220 men, an increase of more than 3,000 in the last month.

By July 22 there will be 2,418 air crew pupils in training, 2,000 more than a month ago.

Commenting on Canada's position in the war in the air, the air minister said:

"Britain's postponement of shipment of aircraft and engines to Canada has presented an obstacle to its prosecution, but efforts are being made to surmount this barrier through national production and purchases from the United States."

"The United States factories are faced with orders from many countries and the obtaining of modern aircraft from that source is not merely a question of placing the order and laying down the cash. There is the additional factor that the United States government is rapidly increasing its own demands for aircraft."

"The British Commonwealth air training plan is going very shortly to require more twin-engine planes for advanced training than at present available, a class of aircraft which it had been expected would come from the United Kingdom. But every effort is being made to secure them."

Canada's preparation is going ahead so that should the enemy's bombing attacks on England render full scale training there impossible a substantial portion of that work could be carried on in the Dominion with a minimum of interruption to the flow of personnel.

"Units of the Royal Canadian Air Force now overseas are recognized as a voluntary supplement to Canada's role in the British Commonwealth air training plan, and will continue to be supported with reinforcements from the R.C.A.F. These men form a distinctly Canadian aerobically trained, whereas graduates of the British Commonwealth air training plan will service with the Royal Air Force."

TAKE STEPS IN BRITAIN TO CHECK DEFEATIST TALK

London.—The government hopes to enrol every man, woman and child in the United Kingdom in a "column of silent soldiers" pledged to kill rumors and defeatist talk.

They will be asked to fight these enemies:

1. Rumors completely false or partly true which tend to cause confusion in civilians' minds.

2. Gossip which puts in circulation military information which might reach the enemy.

3. Defeatist talk regarding the war effort.

A suggested slogan is "Sew your lips with khaki cotton lest you say what's best forgotten."

"Chatter boxes" will be placed in hotels, clubs and homes. People who circulate rumors or talk indirectly will be invited to drop in a contribution for charity.

Every means of modern publicity—newspaper, magazine, advertising posters, radio talks and dramas—will be used to aid the "silent columnists."

It pointed out that rumors and depressing gossip often are inspired by the enemy. The Nazi developed propaganda into a deadly weapon.

War Prisoners

6,700 Prisoners From The United Kingdom To Be Taken By Canada

Ottawa.—Officials of the internment operations branch of the secretary of state department said that Canada had undertaken to imprison for the duration of the war 6,700 prisoners of war and internees from the United Kingdom.

Some of them already have arrived in Canada and have been placed in internment camps at widespread intervals. These camps had been specially equipped for their arrival, a department spokesman said. Other prisoners are still to come to the Dominion.

He would give no figure on the number already in Canada and made no comment on the statement in the British House of Commons by the under-secretary of state for home affairs that the most dangerous class of internees had been sent to Canada.

No Food Shortage

People In Britain Will Have Plenty To Eat This Winter

London.—Britain will continue to eat, despite German efforts to blockade her with submarines and bombers, R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture, told the commons.

"We shall be maintained on our milk supply and our cattle and sheep populations," he said, "and we have both a reserve of meat on the hoof and a large additional store of cereals in stocks and barns for whatever emergency arises this winter."

Mr. Hudson said the nation was facing a crisis immeasurably more serious than in 1914. Agriculture, he added, must increase food production in the next year to prevent millions from going hungry.

Rob Occupied Areas

Germany Taking Food Supplies And Raw Materials

London.—An authoritative British statement charged that Germany is robbing all occupied territories of virtually all food supplies and raw materials with the result that food shortages and famine are likely in those countries this winter.

The statement described strict food rationing established in the German occupied territories while food was being poured into Germany from those regions.

The statement said that the use of the little stocks of raw materials left in German occupied territories was severely restricted.

PROVINCE SHOULD DO SOMETHING TANGIBLE

Is it not about time the Alberta government realized that it should do something tangible to help in Canada's war effort? With the object lesson staring it in the face of municipalities, fraternal and patriotic organizations, companies and individuals contributing cash, the government of this province could stop wasting the taxpayers' money by closing their toy banks and donate the $500,000 yearly cost of operation to Canada's war effort. Another half million dollars a year could very easily be saved and invested in helping to defeat Hitler by dismissing those hundreds of political civil servants added to the public payroll during the past few years. This is a time for retrenchment and the curtailing of non-essential services and works in order that we may concentrate on winning the war, and our provincial authorities ought to lead the way instead of tagging along in the rear.—Trochu Tribune

POLITICS STILL?

Sometimes when one reads current copies of Hansard, the official record of debates in the house of commons, they begin to wonder if Canada is at war or if our representatives got to Ottawa for their indemnity and to play politics. Hansard reveals that much valuable and costly time is wasted on a lot of "trash" talk. Here is a sample which may be found on page 698 of Hansard:

1st Hon. Member: "I assure you that this is not a foolish question, because I happened to find a cockroach in my soup not long ago. Surely there is something wrong when we talk in terms of pure foods, and at the same time find cockroaches in our soup."

2nd Hon. Member: "Perhaps it was a pure cockroach."

1st Hon. Member: "There are many medical doctors in the house who perhaps would say that there is some nutriment in cockroaches; I do not know."

3rd Hon. Member: There might be, if you had enough of them."

4th Hon. Member: The tragic situation to which my hon. friend has referred is the responsibility of the provincial and municipal authorities."

When members, governments and opposition, alike, can waste the time of parliament in times like the present with such talk, as well as the people's hard-earned money paid in taxes, we might in all justification ask ourselves—does democracy function in war time? The present government was elected to office largely on its "prosecution of the war policy" and it should see to it that members do not delay legislation or to waste time with a view to obtaining their full indemnity. The budget last week has certainly let the taxpayers know there's a war on and members of parliament should appreciate that fact and get through with business expeditiously, even though it might affect their indemnity.—Creston Review

"I dislike beating about the bush," growled the golfer who had driven into the rough.

NEWS FROM EDMONTON

(T. B. Windsor)

Edmonton, July 18.—Alberta is fast becoming a silent province politically. This is partly due to a general unofficial agreement to observe a political truce, but it is also due more largely to the cautious conduct of Premier Aberhart, who fears above everything else to make any more of his unfounded statements which would doubtless get him into trouble during these war days. This makes news in Alberta of general interest scarce.

Considerable interest has been aroused in the capital this past week by publication of extracts from the McGillivray commission's report on the oil industry dealing with governmental interference with industry. The opinions of the royal commission in regard to prices and their regulation is especially important, observers have been remarking.

Attention has been drawn clearly to the danger of over-government control, and of unwise legislation that would prevent or prohibit development of the oil industry of the province. The portion of the report most interesting, because of its application to the Aberhart government's past policy of regimentation and interference in trade and industry, is given in the press as that portion between pages 504 to 509. We quote part of this:

"It would be quite wrong for us to find first, as we do, that the oil industry has come through a searching inquiry without having been found guilty of improper practices, of having made undue profits or of having demanded prices which are either exorbitant or out of line with prices elsewhere, and then to recommend that this industry be placed under the domination of some government agency."

"If we are right in this view, it would seem to follow logically that the government should be equally concerned to see to it, again in the public interest, that prices do not become so low as to discourage the inflow of capital into the industry, or so low as to eliminate most competitors and bring about a state of monopoly."

"Our opinion about this whole question of government in business or interfering with business may be shortly stated. In our view, a government should not be in business in competition with its citizens. In our view, a government that eliminates competition by creating a government monopoly with respect to any commodity will in all probability carry on that business with a greater capital investment and at a greater operating cost, and so at a greater ultimate cost to the consumer than private industry would do, for the simple reason that those who carry it on have not the spur of self-interest to reduce cost in order that they may extend profit to themselves."

"It would be interesting to know just how much the above reasoning on government control and interference in business has affected the aims of Premier Aberhart and his cabinet ministers," one observer said on reading the report of the McGillivray royal commission. "Certainly it hasn't appeared to move them much in their plans to enter into competition in the banking business with these Alberta interests engaged in that business now."

But, unfortunately, the Aberhart government's plans to enter into competition with its own citizens in the banking business have reached a dead end. Hop. Lucien Maynard, minister of municipal affairs, returned during the week from Ottawa, where he had been engaged in a watching brief while the Alberta Bank Act application was introduced in parliament. What his impressions or view on the incident have not been revealed. His report was given to Premier Aberhart, and the cabinet ministers alone, and no word for the people has been so far forthcoming.

The Alberta bank act has been referred to the parliamentary standing committee on banking and commerce, and it is likely that it will find a decent burial there. It is not thought likely it will ever be resurrected from its quiet tomb. The Aberhart strategy has achieved its end, and so far, which is to give the impression of having kept pre-election promises by asking for what it never wanted or expected to get. There is every reason to doubt the sincerity of the government's request for a bank charter, despite the loud protests that it was the aim of the government to establish a medium for "creating credit." Premier Aberhart knows very well that the government could never be granted a bank charter on Social Credit terms, and therefore the application was nothing but a bluff designed to persuade the public of the government's sincerity.

The net result, however, seems to be that Canada will be saved from the danger of the country's credit of having a Social Credit government monkeying with banking in hopeless experiments in economics and finance during the crucial war period.

REVISED VERSION

Here is a new version of the old "ism" joke that was popular two or three years ago. We don't know its origin:

Socialism: If you have two cows, give one to your neighbor.

Communism: If you have two cows, you give them to the government, and the government then gives you some milk.

Fascism: If you have two cows, you keep the cows and give the milk to the government; then the government sells you some milk.

New Dealism: If you have two cows, you shoot one and milk the other. Then you pour the milk down the drain.

Nazism: If you have two cows, the government shoots you and keeps the cows.

Capitalism: If you have two cows, you sell one and buy a bull.

RAILROAD LABOR FOR

"MORAL RE-ARMAMENT"

"Moral Re-Armament," a movement which has enlisted hundreds of thousands of men and women in all walks of life in the United States and other parts of the world, has been officially endorsed by the Railway Labor Executives' Association.

Action was taken after George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and former chairman of the association, had made a statement which deeply moved the rail labor chieftains.

"The forces of destruction abroad in the world today threaten the foundations of our democracy. Civilization is in danger as never before, and the freedom of man is in the balance," Harrison declared.

"It is an easy matter to lay the blame on others, and to refuse to walk the straight path of personal responsibility. But the times demand an honest facing, by every man and every nation, of their own guilt in our common crisis."

"Such a time presents to labor a challenge and an opportunity," Harrison continued. "From us, as from every group, is demanded a frank recognition of our share of the blame. A movement divided against itself can make small contribution to a world similarly divided."

The resolution unanimously adopted by the railroad labor chiefs follows: "One of the most baffling questions before this nation today is how to break the vicious circle of bitterness that commonly enters all negotiations between groups having conflicting interests. Our greatest need is for the rise of a new spirit that will replace that bitterness with creative planning for national unity."

"For that change, labor has a joint responsibility with all other groups of our citizens, and we are convinced that the time has come to face it squarely on the principles of moral re-armament. Accordingly, we pledge ourselves to help labor find its place of moral leadership in American life, and set a pattern of co-operation within its own ranks."

THE COMING OF THE CHILDREN

There's a young and gallant army On the march for peace today. It's the army of the children.

On their glad and fearless way; They are coming in their thousands, With their faces to the light Of a new and joyous kingdom.

Born of justice, truth and right, Through the darkness of the blackout

We have heard their simple plea—"Will you give us love and shelter In the lands beyond the sea?"

We are tired of raid and terror, And 'tis but our rights we ask: Just to play in God's sweet sunshine

Where we need not wear a mask."

And across the starlit ocean Rings the answer clear and true—"We have flung our doors wide open

And are proud to welcome you. There are little white beds waiting In the vast lands of the West,

Where no weapon of aggression Will disturb your gentle rest."

There are blossoms for your plucking, There is sun on plain and hill;

In our hearts are vacant places That your precious love will fill;

And we pray the grace of heaven That our rule of home be just,

That we ne'er may prove unworthy Of so wonderful a trust.

Father, guard this mighty army, Oh so brave, and yet so frail;

These ambassadors of Britain, Going forth to blaze the trail

For a new eternal brotherhood, Undying, strong and free;

A great and glorious Empire. For the years that are to be.

—Eva Constance Barrett, Curling, Newfoundland.

Premier Aberhart of Alberta is fond of protesting his patriotism on every occasion. If he means it, then there are several ways he can help along the war effort, argues the Calgary Herald. It calls on the premier to put the province on a wartime basis of economy; to clean out unnecessary employees; to close up expensive and useless treasury branches.

The story is told of a guy who for the past thirty years or so has been dead from the heels up. He offered his services to his country in the war effort, and felt so wonderfully fit after three days' training that he asked to be sent over. Travelling east, he felt that the train means of transportation was not fast enough for him, so he left the train near Winnipeg and walked ahead of it, reaching Montreal eleven hours before the train arrived.

An effective dandelion herbicide is iron sulphate, if it is properly applied. The iron sulphate should be dissolved at the rate of 1½ pounds in two gallons of water, and sprayed over the infested area. This amount is sufficient to cover 350 square feet. Iron sulphate will turn the weed leaves black, but will not damage the grass blades. The first cutting of the lawn after the application will remove any discoloration in the grass.

THE INTERNATIONAL ELK

Herds of elk, or wapiti, which each autumn cross the international boundary between Canada and the United States to winter in Waterton Lakes National Park in southwestern Alberta, display a completely independent and international spirit. They disregard entirely border inspection regulations in these seasonal migrations from one country to the other, nor is their long-established right to move freely between the two countries ever challenged. In this respect they typify the spirit of international goodwill which inspired the formation of Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park, commemorating over a hundred years of peace between the two nations.

The migration of the elk northward instead of to the south in winter is a reversal of ordinary wild life migrations on the North American continent at this time of the year. The explanation is to be found in the topography of the region. Elk prefer high land for summer grazing, but seek suitable pasture on the lower ranges during the winter on higher altitudes. This is exactly what happens in the Waterton-Glacier Park area. Waterton Lakes National Park may be described as in part a foothill country, and it provides ideal winter range for the elk.

The park covers an area 220 square miles and lies along the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains northward from the international boundary. Its western boundary is formed by the crest of the Rockies, which separates Alberta from British Columbia; its northern boundary by the Crow's Nest Forest Reserve of Alberta and its eastern boundary by the undulating prairie land of foothill ranches and homesteads. To the south lies Glacier National Park in the State of Montana. It was by uniting these contiguous national parks under the name of Waterton-Glacier International Peace Park that the governments of Canada and the United States recognized the harmonious relations which have continued between the two countries for more than a century. Each section of the international park; however, continues to retain its individuality, nationality and separate administrative rights.

The region is rich in historical romance and stirring adventure. It was once the home of the Indian and the buffalo, where exciting chases and the clashes between tribes were the order of the day. Along its forested slopes have passed in turn Indians, trappers, and traders, in the great cavalcade of events gone by. Later came the days when the great west was a wild land of cattle ranches, and the secluded valleys of Waterton became a hiding place for the stolen herds of cattle rustlers. Long ago the Indians forsook their tribal warfare and smoked "the pipe of peace." With the arrival of the scarlet-coated "Riders of the Plains," cattle-rustling was made an unprofitable and even unhealthy occupation. The chase has now been abandoned and throughout the whole of this park area the camera has been substituted for the rifle as a means of securing wild life "trophies."

The name Waterton was given to the lovely lakes, which are one of the attractive features of the park, in honor of Charles Waterton, an English naturalist, ornithologist, and traveller, and it is therefore quite fitting that this wild life preserve should bear the name of one of the pioneers of wild life conservation. Besides being a great wild life sanctuary, Waterton Lakes Park has become an international playground, and is visited by increasing numbers of tourists each year.

It is estimated that some six hundred elk spend the winter within the protected area of this park. They arrive looking sleek and fat, the stags proudly displaying magnificent antlers. These antlers are the crowning glory of the elk, and best his size and dignity. While the female elk among the mountain valleys devotes all the summer to her calf, the male, at a

Canada to Supply Army with Universal Carriers

UNIVERSAL machine gun carriers will soon be added to the list of army vehicles made in Canada for the fighting forces at home and overseas. These are equipped with caterpillar treads and are very manoeuvrable and speedy. They are armoured against small arms fire and will carry three Bren guns, or can be used to carry ammunition, wireless sets and other necessary equipment. They will be produced in the Windsor plant of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, which has been selected as the most suitable for the production of this vehicle. In the lower photograph, Mr. Wallace R. Campbell, president of the Canadian Ford organization, is shown with Lieut.-Col. D. C. Warriner, officer commanding the Essex Tank Battalion, Windsor, inspecting one of the Universal carriers. Other army vehicles now made in the Ford plant in

Windsor include the powerful four-wheel drive gun tractor pictured above. These and other types of military vehicles are rolling off the assembly line of the Canadian Ford plant which is supplying nearly 10,000 units to the Canadian army and another 25,000 units for military purposes to other Empire governments. The plant is now being expanded by a $700,000 addition to provide facilities for building Universal carriers and to increase production of other types of military vehicles.

NOW IS THE TIME TO

JOIN THE MILITIA

(By Richard J. Needham)

Many Canadians are wondering what they can do about the war. They are paying taxes, but that does not seem to be enough. They could try to join the active service forces, but they probably have domestic and other responsibilities which delay their action in this regard. What can they do? They can join the militia.

The non-permanent active militia has about the same function in war as it has in peace. Its object is to give men military training in their spare time, two or three evenings a week, so that they will be reasonably prepared for active military service if and when the need arises. The man who joins the militia keeps working at his job, keeps living at home. The only difference it makes to him is that he is going down to his local armory to parade and be instructed on regular evenings. He has no uniform, just an armband. He may get a uniform later on from the government, but at present there are none available for the militia.

It does not cost anything to join the militia—nothing has to be purchased. He will lose a little time in the evenings, but that is all—about four or five hours a week, and two full weeks for camp at Sarcee in September.

The man who joins the militia is under no obligation to serve overseas. He may volunteer to go overseas, and the opportunity to go overseas may be placed before him. But he is under no obligation to go.

Militia training is available in southern Alberta at Lethbridge and Medicine Hat; at Claresholm, High River and Pincher Creek. At present, the Infantry and Tank outfits are the most likely places for would-be militiamen to go. Later on, they will be able to take evening training in such branches of the service as gunnery, ambulance work, the medical service, engineers and pioneers.

The great advantage of militia training is that it enables a man to prepare himself for anything that may come. By joining the militia, he does not change his life and his position as a civilian. But he makes an effective move toward the defence of his country.

The man who joins the militia gets at least a partial preparation for army life, and makes his transition (should it come) from civilian to army life a fairly simple matter. This transition might come in three ways. Firstly, he might decide to volunteer for active service overseas.

In that case, he would stand a good chance of acceptance, and more rapid advancement in the active service unit if he then joins. Secondly, his militia unit might be called out for active service in the defence of Canada. In that case, he would stick to his unit, but become a full-time, instead of a spare-time, soldier. Thirdly, he might await his call under the principle of universal service recently adopted by the Canadian government. In that case, he would find the going a lot easier, whether he stayed in the same unit or was transferred to another.

The militia units are following one of the major principles of organization in this war. They are trying to place men in the positions where their training and ability will be of the greatest value. Men with special training will be advised in what way that training will be most useful to the defence of Canada. Beyond this, of course, there is the great advantage of military training in national spirit and morale. Men who are turning out two or three evenings a week to train for Canada's defence are building up a strong and democratic foundation for this country, both during the war and after. They are accepting the responsibilities, as well as the privileges, of being a Canadian. —Reprinted from The Calgary Herald editorial page, Tuesday, July 9, 1940.

TO THROW SHELL

ABOUT 750 MILES

Monahans, Texas, July 15. — The November 11th, 1918, armistice shelved O. A. Bruton's plans for an electrical device he says can throw a 1,000-pound shell 750 miles.

But the Second Great War brought them out again, and after more retooling work, he has presented the specifications to the United States war department as a gift. Bruton, 47-year-old jeweler, says there is no comparison between his device and any other.

"There never has been a machine of that type that does not use some kind of explosive," he explained. "The only explosive in my equipment is a shell. The gun itself is strictly electrical and when fired does not have any vibration and will make no more noise than would come from starting a 500-horsepower motor."

Bruton estimates the device will cost about the same as an ordinary gun of its calibre—it can be made any size from 18 inches bore up—and that the shell would cost from $2,500 to $3,000.

At the recent Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association convention, a number of important resolutions were passed. One stated: "Resolved that we endorse even more effective measures to suppress disloyal and subversive elements within our boundaries, and urge a more definite clarification of authority as between federal and provincial officers in the enforcement of the Defence of the Realm Act." Another gave "unqualified endorsement of War Savings Certificates, and pledged, individually and collectively to continue material and spiritual support to every phase of the war effort."

"No greater thing could come to this land today than a revival of the spirit of religion — a revival that would sweep through the homes of the nation and stir the hearts of men and women of all faiths to a reassertion of their belief in God and their dedication to His will for themselves and for their world. I doubt if there is any problem—social, political, or economic—that would not melt away before the fire of such spiritual awakening."—President Roosevelt.

Sightless Fish

Are Found In Waters Of Caverns Over Wide Areas

When a deep artesian water well was brought in recently in Southern California's sub-sea-level Coachella Valley, up with the flowing water came thousands of tiny, clear water fish without even a trace of rudimentary eyes. Ichthyologists identified them as a species previously known to natural science, a species allied to the sightless fish of Mammoth Cave, in Kentucky, and found in the waters of several other great caverns in widely-separated parts of the earth.

Their discovery in the artesian well bored to a depth of 1,400 feet indicates the existence of a subterranean river or lake under the Coachella Valley where the fish have survived through the thousands of years it has taken for adaptation to environment to transform them into an eyeless species.—Christian Science Monitor.

Papers From All Parts Of Canada Represented At Calgary Meeting

More than 200 newspaper editors and owners from all parts of Canada, representing all shades of editorial opinion and almost every type of Canadian, gathered in Calgary for the two-day convention of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association. The agenda included reports, discussion, addresses and entertainment. H. T. Halliwell of Coleman, Alta., president of the association, presided at all sessions.

Part of the weeklies in promoting the spirit of patriotism and support of the government in these trying times was pointed out by Mr. Halliwell in his report. "The city of metropolitan cities provide the news service covering world events, but when it comes to the intimate touch in arousing people's interests, the editorial pen of the weekly editor can and does accomplish much. We must at all times try to improve our services to our readers so that the weekly newspaper is a vital force in the community," he said.

Weekly newspapers were giving free publicity to the War Savings Certificates campaign, and other worthy causes, he said.

The meeting closed officially with a banquet and dance at which awards and trophies were presented. Guest speaker was W. Frank Pendergast, assistant to the president of Imperial Oil, Ltd., Toronto.

The executive follows: Past president, H. T. Halliwell, Coleman, Alta.; president, H. E. Rice, Huntville, Ont.; first vice-president, Walter Ashfield, Grenfell, Sask.; second vice-president, Walter Legge, Granby, Que.; managing director, C. V. Charters, Brampton, Ont.

I Read---And Write---For You

By JOHN C. KIRKWOOD

F. Hopkinson Smith, engineer, painter, novelist, lecturer, attended a party of literary people several years before World War No. 1. He had allied himself to look like the Kaiser, being clothed in a white and much-decorated uniform, and wearing a brass helmet. He put medals and crosses on many of the guests and amused them by saying, "I don't own the whole of alberty."

William Lyons Phelps, in his recent book, "Autobiography with Letters," and this to me about the habits of literary men: "Most professed pessimists are happy men."

You have read, of course, of Tom Pendergast, a former boss of the Democratic machine in New York, who was elected mayor of New York City, and who was sent to prison for 15 months for evading federal income taxes. Pendergast has recently been released from prison under strict rules of probation. Thus he must remain out of office, where for 15 years he held the reins as dictator of Kansas City; he must have neither direct nor indirect political participation; he must not go outside the state of Missouri; he must not go to any place in Kansas City without written permission from the judge who has imposed these "rules." His business contacts must be within strict legal limits; he must live a "clean, upright, temperate life"; he must keep good company, and once a month must report to the probation officer and give up strict accounting of his activities. He must pay before April 1st, 1941, his back income taxes, amounting to $125,000.

About the prohibition of gambling: In a single year Pendergast bet $2,000,000 on race horses, and ended that year with $600,000 the loser. Pendergast may come to the conclusion that remaining in prison is more tolerable than being on probation.

When this present war is over there may be several kings and queens without a throne. If Hitler wins, there may be no king of Norway, of Denmark, of Belgium; no queen of Holland; no kings in the Balkan countries, no king of Egypt. If the ancient buildings of Britain and France should be destroyed in large numbers, then these countries would lose much of their tourist appeal. Both London and Paris, if greatly destroyed, would be rebuilt as modern cities, and so would lose their present appeal to both the eye and the imagination.

Now they are to be taught and entertained by radio. At Window Rock, Arizona, has been erected a broadcasting station, from which will be broadcast programs in the Navajo tongue. These broadcasts will be largely educational, in relation to the practice of agriculture, land management and stock handling. In the past the radio and file of the tribe have been difficult to reach by would-be teachers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

JULY 21
JOB'S REPENTANCE AND RESTORATION

Golden text: The Lord turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends. Job 42:10.
Lesson: Job 42:1-13.
Devotional reading: II Corinthians 12:2-10.

Explanations and Comments

Job's Repentance, Job 42:1-6. Then Job answered Jehovah and said, "I know that thou canst do all things; and there is none that can be restrained."

In the chapters that precede, 40 and 41, the account of the hippopotamus and the crocodile, God had been giving Job convincing evidences of his wisdom, power, and love. Job had humbly acknowledged that he had learned his lesson; he is ready to trust where he does not understand. "Who is this that hideth counsel without knowledge? Job soliloquies. Why did I utter what I did not understand, things too wonderful for me to know?"

Job's Restoration, Job 42:7-15. These words form the epilogue to the Drama of Job. First, Jehovah's estimate of the three friends is given: speaking to Eliphaz Jehovah said, "My wrath is kindled against thee, and against thy two friends; for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job hath." The friends are bidden to offer seven bullocks and seven rams as a burnt-offering for themselves before Jehovah. "For him will I accept that I deal not with you after your folly," is translated by Moffatt as, "Out of regard for him, I will not wreak destruction upon you for your impiety." This Eliphaz, Bildad and Zophar did, and God had regard for Job's intercession.

And Jehovah turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends. "That is a proverbial expression, meaning that the friends of the deep traces left by the Exodus, for reverent calamity. The turning-point was not merely the confession, but the act of beneficence. So, ministering to others, one's own grudge may be smoothed."

And Jehovah gave Job twice as much as he had before. "Knowing as we do the cause of Job's misfortunes (Satan's testing), and that as soon as his trial was over it was no longer operative, our sense of fitness could not be satisfied unless he were indemnified outwardly for his outward sufferings."

SPEECH IMPEDIMENTS

Parents of children with speech defects should realize that speech is not an isolated factor in a person's means of expression, writes Ruth Lewis, speech authority, in the current issues of "Health," organ of the Health League of Canada. "Speech," she writes "is an expression of the self and a means of making that self contact other human beings; therefore the whole life of the child must be considered in relation to his speech."

Parrot-like drills are not enough to correct an impediment of speech, Miss Lewis writes. "A child cannot respond to speech training if he is emotionally maladjusted in his relation to his home or school environment." She suggests that trained psychologists examine the whole personality of the child, and a program of activity adopted that will change the emotional life of the child.

While most speech defects are due to mental maladjustments, there are speech defects due to physical malformations, writes Miss Lewis. In such cases the speech therapist must rely on the doctor's and dentist's assistance. "But the repair of the physical abnormality is not sufficient to cure the speech disorder; it merely prepares the ground," she says.

Speech drills and exercises have an important place in all cases of defective articulation, Miss Lewis holds. "Only with a full knowledge of phonetics and the analysis of sounds can adequate work be done in establishing new sounds and correcting mis-pronounced ones," she writes. "The need for the child to discriminate one sound from another is always kept in the foreground."

For British War Effort

Woman Donates Diamonds Which Brought Nearly $108,500 At Auction

A necklace of 42 diamonds presented anonymously to the government by a woman to help the British war effort was sold at Christie's, London, auctioneers, for £24,400 (nearly $108,500).

Experts were amazed at the magnificence of the stones, which are set in individual collars, each separated by small twin diamonds mounted transversely. The large centre diamond is connected with those on either side by smaller circular diamonds, each composed of three large and four smaller circular diamonds. The clasp consists of a single circular diamond and two smaller twin diamonds, mounted transversely.

Christie's believes the necklace is the "most superb we have ever had to sell." The identity of the woman owner remains a secret.

The Park Lane Mystery

One night it happened that he found himself walking along the street at the back of Rothernary Mansions and, looking up, noticed a light burning behind the green blind in an upper room. Mr. Ingle's apartment was very easily located. There was a narrow passage to identify the height; the lumber room where the light shined was four windows from the fireplace.

Elk was with him, and to that enthusiastic man he confided his intentions.

"He'll start to squeal about police persecution," suggested Elk.

Undeterred, Jim went up in the elevator, though the man in charge discouraged him.

"I don't think Mr. Jackson is at home," he said. (This was the name by which Ingle was known). "A gentleman called an hour ago and knocked twice but could get no answer."

"Maybe I can knock louder," suggested Jim.

But ring and knock as he did, he had no answer. Yet, as he listened at the letter-box aperture, he could swear that the bell was ringing, he could have heard a stealthy footstep inside. Why was he hiding?

There was, of course, the possibility that the man was engaged in some new piece of rogueship. But from his experience of swindlers, Jim Carlton knew that they were never furtive when they were planning a coup.

The landing was deserted, and he could wait without attracting to himself the suspicion of the lift man. Again he stooped and listened, and now he heard a sound which puzzled him—a whirling like the rapid turning of a ratchet. He heard that noise before somewhere, and yet he could not locate, or diagnose, the sound. It came very faintly as through a closed door.

He saw the ascending light of the elevator and walked to the gate. The car passed to the next floor to discharge its passenger, and then came down to his level.

"Couldn't make him hear, I suppose, sir?" asked the elevator man, with the satisfaction of one whose dire prophecy has been realized. "He won't see anybody these days. Why?"

Worked Out All Right

Lucky Weather Forecast

The Christian Science Monitor says Isaiah Thomas, early printer of the Farmer's Almanac, was asked by one of his printer's devils what he should put after "July 13," no provision having been made.

Thomas, giving little thought to the question replied hurriedly, "Anything." Which accounts for the Almanac of a late 18th century year carrying after its July 13 date, much to the amusement of the populace, "Rain, hail, and snow."

But, stranger than fiction, it did rain, hail and snow on July 13 of that year, giving the Almanac's sales a much deserved boost.

GEMS OF THOUGHT

STREIVING

Life affords no higher pleasure than that of surmounting difficulties.

—Anon.

He that wrestles with us strengthens our nerves, and sharpens our skill. Our antagonist is our helper.

—Burke.

It is the temper of the highest hearts to strive most upwards when they are most burdened.—Sir Philip Sidney.

In the battle of life, good is made more industrious and persistent because of the supposed activity of evil.—Mary Baker Eddy.

To wrestle with the angel—this prevails.

Though the purpose of the wrestling falls.—Anon.

Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now ye do it to obtain a corruptible crown; but we an incorruptible.—New Testament: I. Corinthians 9: 25.

Ellic Trapping

Taking of Fur-Bearing Animals Out

Northern Ontario is infested with an organization or ring engaged in one of the most despicable of law transgressions... the taking of fur-bearing animals which enjoy protection for one purpose, conservation to prevent extermination... and heavy fines, in some instances accompanied by jail terms, have failed to compel observance of regulations.

While trappers, Indians and white men are responsible for illegal trapping, the greatest liability rests upon those who provide a market for the illicit fur and, in the majority of cases, encourage the transgression of law.—North Bay Nugget.

Australia Is Ready

Caring For Soldiers

Red Cross Hospital Visitors' Committee Operates In Britain

One of the services provided overseas by the Canadian Red Cross Society for the comfort of Canadian troops is the Hospital Visitors' Committee. Members of this committee, mostly Canadian women now resident in England, are assigned to hospitals throughout the Old Country to look after the comfort of every Canadian soldier admitted. The Hospital Visitor reports on his needs to the Soldiers' Comforts Committee of the Canadian Red Cross in London and a parcel is despatched immediately. If the patient is unable to do so himself, the Visitor writes to his relatives in Canada, keeping them informed of his progress.

The Overseas Advisory Committee of the society has accepted the very generous offer of a lovely Worcester house for the convalescent officers. The donor's fund will bear the cost of operation, estimated at £8,000.

Zip-Zag Clocks

Used On Ship To Help Dodge Enemy Submarines

British merchant ships all carry "zip-zag" clocks to help them avoid enemy U-boats. It was explained at a Ministry of Shipping inquiry by David Nichol, marine superintendent of the Union Mills Line.

Nichol said the instrument, which worked like an alarm clock, was set to ring at regular intervals, and the bell warned the helmsman steering a zig-zag course that it was time to change course.

The inquiry was into the loss of the 7,018-ton motor schooner Rothesay Castle which struck a reef off the west coast of Scotland in January and broke her back.

Australia's War Effort

Newsprint And Gasoline Rationed And Waste Meticulously Salvaged

Australia is tightening her economic belt, in an effort to help win the war.

An order has gone out from the commonwealth government to eliminate waste, the States having been asked to encourage and supervise the salvaging of such waste as household refuse, paper, cardboard, bottles, scrap metal, rags and rubber.

The Victoria Red Cross is already receiving 1125 ($300) daily from the sale of waste. State governments will control a corps of collectors.

Effective July 1, rationing of newspaper print cut of some Australian newspapers. Metropolitan dailies and large weeklies are allowed to 85 per cent of their 1938-39 tonnage, other papers 25 to 30 per cent.

This rationing allows is expected to save $1,000,000 ($2,800,000) annually in sterling exchange.

Gasoline will be rationed in August with private automobiles allowed eight to 18 gallons monthly according to horsepower and commercial vehicles 30 gallons. These trucks will be grouped so as to reduce aggregate mileage and each group will receive special rationing.

Regulations Broadened

War Certificates May Now Be Bought By Certain Groups

In response to requests by a number of patriotic groups in Canada, the war savings committee of the federal government has announced a broadening of regulations covering issue of war savings certificates whereby the certificates will be issuable to certain specific groups wishing to act in concert. Previously, certificates have been issued only to individuals.

Incorporated or unincorporated bodies organized for the purpose of carrying on objects of national, municipal, patriotic, religious, educational, charitable, professional, social or sporting activities "without pecuniary gain to their members," will be allowed to purchase not more than $500 worth of certificates.

Service clubs and labor and fraternal organizations, excepting those acting primarily as insurance or benefit societies, are also included.

Smallest Electric Motor

Swiss Watchmaker Has Set It In Pearl Tie Pin

Exhibits at the Swiss National Exhibition at Zurich, last summer included the smallest electric motor in the world. It weighed 16 grams, and was constructed by M. Fernand Huguenin, a watchmaker, of La Tour de Pelez, near Vevey.

M. Huguenin has now constructed an even smaller motor, weighing only 65 gram (less than 1-800th of an ounce). He had to use very powerful magnifying glasses in constructing his masterpiece, which runs perfectly on current supplied by a pocket battery. The motor has been made into a tie pin and set in a pearl cut in two and hollowed out—London Times.

To Be Expected

Nazi Prisoners Show Their Cowardice When Subjected To Bombs

True, and perhaps instructive. A traitor in a camp carrying evacuated soldiers to a British port was asked how he stood the constant aerial bombing to which the ships were subjected. "It would have been all right," he said, "if it had not been for the German prisoners. We had to take forcible steps to silence them, or they would have quite unnerved us."—London Spectator.

We never yet saw anything brief hauled out of a brief case.

At Ottawa, Hon. Solon Low, Alberta's provincial treasurer, denied that the Alberta government attempted to drive the chartered banks out of Alberta by taxation. The majority of the people of the province believe that the government just tried to do that.

In order to prevent undue hardships, regulations have been issued through the medium of an order-in-council forbidding women, and children under the age of twelve years, to sail from a Canadian port on vessels scheduled to travel through war zones or European waters in the course of their voyage.

Mr. Howard Heinz, president of H. J. Heinz Company of Canada Limited, whose principal plant is at Leamington, Ontario, has announced that he has issued an invitation to the employees of the company in Great Britain, who number several thousands, to send their children to Canada and United States for the duration of the war at the company's expense.

Prince Edward Island will continue to be Canada's only "dry" province. Complete returns in the recent liquor plebiscite show 10,426 for existing prohibition and 8,861 for sale of beer and wine. The soldiers' vote was 1,000 to 28 in favor of repeal. Under present legislation, liquor can be purchased in government stores only with a doctor's prescription.
